

BIOGRAPHICAL

BIOGRAPHICAL PROFILE:

The False Heroics are passionate, hard-working rock, with influences ranging from 70's rock'n'roll, to 90's brit-rock, to underground post-punk. Well-crafted lyrics and singable melodies mix with solid guitars to create a textured sound akin to bands such as The Stills, Switchfoot, The Juliana Theory, or Jimmy Eat World.

Since his days growing up in the crowded cities and jungle villages of Bangladesh, Adam King (Vocals/Guitar) has been writing songs. Moving back to Canada permanently near the end of high school, Adam began to create music with good friends Jared Korstanje (Bass/Vocals), Mike Nicholson (Guitars/Vocals), and Jon Grime (Drums). The chemistry of the group was clear, and after playing and writing together for 2 years, they embarked on their journey as The False Heroics in mid 2003.

First stop was the release of their debut EP "Stars Gone Black," on their own Pure Nard label. Coupled with their live show, this release has been garnering them underground fans across Ontario, and CD orders from far away as Spain and Holland.

Second stop is to introduce The False Heroics to ever-widening audiences by performing wherever and whenever they can.
